Just before the Emperor's demise a Minis terial council was held and various important affairs of state hurriedly discussed. Prince Bismarck presided, and was much affected by the terrible pathos of the scene.

The funeral services will be more simple than those which took place over the body of Emperor William, but they will be none the less impressive, as Emperor Frederick was loved by every one of his subjects.

In a desultory sort of fashion the Republi can delegates and politicians are getting away to the Chicago Convention.

Prince was appointed Regent until his father's recovery.
On Jan. 25, 1858, he married Victoria Adelaide, Princess Royal of Great Britain, by whom he had seven children—Frederick William Victor Albert, born Jan. 27, 1850 (commonly called Prince William); Victoria Elizabeth Augusta Charlotte, born July 24, 1860; Albert William Henry, born Aug. 20, 1862; Frederica Amelia Wilhelmina Victoria, born April 12, 1865; Joachim Frederick Ernest Waldemar, born Feb. 10, 1868; Sophia Dorothy Ulrica Alice, born June 14, 1870, and Margaret Beatrix Feedore, born April 22, 1872. There is nothing like the unity of action that characterized the departure of the Democratic cohorts for St. Louis, and, if report be true, they are not actuated by the same unity of purpose.

They are all at sea for a candidate. There are the Blaine-or-busters, the Harrison and Phelps supporters, a few Alger and Sherman shouters and a great number of short-horse Margarot Beatrix Feodore, born April 22, 1872.

Unlike his father, the Emperor, and Bismarck, the Crown Prince was not a believer in a large standing army, nor did he hope for the final overthrow of France, preferring that the contest with that country should be carried on by means of the arts, industries and sciences rather than by force of arms.

In his family relations he was a loving and respected husband and a kind and indulgent father. His personal dislike of Prince Bismarck dated from the time of his marriage, when Bismarck openly declared that an English wife could bring nothing but bad blood to the German blood royal.

In person the Crown Prince was an exceptionally distinguished-looking man. He wore a full beard, which, during the latter part of his life, had turned from brown to gray; his face was purely German in type; are the Blaine-or-busters, the Harrison and Phelps supporters, a few Alger and Sherman shouters and a great number of short-horse players.

Among these latter is Shed Shook, of the Eleventh District, who leaves at 5.30 to-night in special cars over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

He will be accompanied by a select party of about forty, among whom will be Police Commissioners French and McClave, Police Justices Jako Patterson and Solon B. Smith, George B. Dean, sr., Assemblyman Robert Ray Hamilton, John J. O'Brien, John D. Lawson, Coroner John R. Nugent, ex.Judge John F. Plummer, Frank Raymond, the big leader of the Twenty-third District; Emigration Commissioner Jake Hess, Donald McLean, Arthur Bateman, George Hilliard, Arthur R. Pelton, E. C. Lee and Jeremiah Pangborn.

Boss Platt left last night in his special car over the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad. His favorite candidate for Vice-President, William Walter Pholps, was with him.

This fact disheartened the boomers for Depew, as it looks much as though the Boss is to throw the Empire State's favorite son for a Westerner—probably Harrison.

Depew, who is a delegate-at-large as well as a candidate, also left for the scene of action yesterday, boarding his private car at Syracuse. With him are Bald Eagle Husted and ex.Judge W. H., Robertson, of Katonah, On the same train were ex-Congressman Burleigh, of Troy; Howard Carroll, ex-Assistant Postmaster-General Frank Hatton, John H. Starin, Reid Benedict, B. F. Judson and Secretary Andrew B, Humphrey, of the Republican League of the United States.

The regular delegates' train will leave the Grand Central Depot at 11.90 to-morrow and will stop at the Frederick III. was in an almost dying condition at the time he succeeded his father, and, although conflicting reports of his improvement have appeared since then, there was never any chance of his recovery.

He was much interested in the love match between his daughter, the Princess Victoria, and Prince Alexander, of Battenberg, and the opposition of Prince Bismarck caused him much worriment.

The death of Emperor Frederick and the succession of his son William to the throme will doubtless remove Bismarck's opposition to the marriage, as the political significance of such a union has been greatly diminished.

face, with clearly cut features, high cheek bones and a yellowish mustache.

He is a very warlike young man and, unlike his father, is a warm friend of Prince Bismarck. He is extremely anti-French and is directly opposed to his mother, who represents the English element in Germany, on one occasion refusing to give her his arm in public. His prejudice to foreign things is well illustrated by his refusing at a dinner to drink champagne because it was not made in Germany.

Mr. Townsend blossomed out.

Mr. Townsend declared that the question was whether Luther R. Marsh had a right to invite whom he liked to his house and a right to do with his own as he liked. He could show to the jury beyond question that madame was a medium of remarkable power.

Mrs. A. T. Stewart spent more than $1,000,000 on a church on Long Island, and no one had accused her of being insane, nor prosecuted anybody for advising her. And Marsh says no one advised him. He did as he liked.

"Those who desire to save Mr. Marsh from something—I don't care who they are—are meddlesome," said Mr. Townsend.

And the second juror nodded approval vigorously.

And the second juror nodded approvatiogorously.

'I have the greatest desire to do for this persecuted lady because Mr. Marsh asks me to do for her. She found his house nothing, as Mr. Marsh's nephew has told you, and made it a home. He believed her a great, faithful, devoted, Christian woman."

Citoyen Train grew excited during Mr. Townsend's speech. His feelings found vent for the most part in much scribbling of Psycho rhymes with blue and red pencils, but ocassionally he emitted ejaculations of emotion.

"What difference could it make whether this woman is or is not the daughter of Loia Montez or John Smith? Hasn't any one a right to change his name?" asked the pleader dramatically.

The plea was concluded with an appeal in behalf of "This woman who sacrificed everything to go to Mr. Marsh's desolated home and make it bright and cheerful, and to minister to him."

Inspector Scory Is Told the Harrely Contai Only Lima Oil, but the Law Is Violated Just the Same-The Inspector Has Issued an Order of Removal Which Will Be Enforced-Rumore of a Suit by the Standard Company.

Notwithstanding the emphatic refusal of the Fire Commissioners to allow the Standard Oil Company to store naphtha or other oils in their tanks, at the foot of One Hundred and Fifteenth street, the inhabitants of the neighborhood were astonished and alarmed to see a lighter discharge a cargo of barrels, having "Naphtha" marked on the heads, at their wharf last Sunday.

The residents at once entered a vigorous protest against this violation of the law, and the Fire Commissioners ordered an investi-

Inspector Seery, of the Bureau of Combustibles, visited the gas works, and in an adjacent yard he found a number of barrels marked "naphtha." The officials declared the contents to be only Lima oil, for which, on account of its cheapness, any second-hand barrels were used.

Pursuing his investigations, the Inspector found several small tanks full of this Lima oil, which was being pumped out as re-oil, which was being pumped out as required by the company.

The Inspector did not stop to verify the statement that only Lama oil was in the naphtha barrels, for the Fire Department expressly forbade the storing of any kind of oil in that neighborhood, and the monopolists were coolly disobeying the order.

Mr. Seery returned to his office, where he wrote to the Standard Gaslight Company, ordering them to remove all the Lima oil, or naphtha, within two days from the receipt of the notice.
